The firm won the Client Service Awards against strong competition from leading Dublin based law firms.

The Client Service Awards are given to firms which receive particularly glowing praise from their clients and provide outstanding client-service, whoever the client and whatever the size of the deal.

RDJ won the Client Service Award for Ireland. Client praise was resounding for this firm, and comments such as this one helped Chambers to make their decision:

“This firm gives us a 24/7 service. All the work is on time and all the staff are efficient. We get high quality advice no matter who we are dealing with. Professional, approachable and down to earth, I can’t praise them enough.”

The legendary British advocate, Michael Beloff QC presented the awards to the winners at The Grosvenor House Hotel, London.

The awards honour outstanding law firms, reflecting their pre-eminence and their notable achievements over the past 12 months, including outstanding work, impressive strategic growth and excellence in client service.

RDJ managing partner, John Dwyer said: “RDJ is very proud to receive this award. It is a great tribute to the superb team at the firm and recognises the importance we place on providing a client focused approach.”
