The introduction of the new General Data Protection Regulation, which will come into force on 25 May 2018, will make data protection a priority and will confer enhanced rights of access as well as including strengthened consent provisions.

Breaches of information security can be high profile and can damage public trust and confidence. Ronan Daly Jermyn will help you prepare, react and safeguard your reputation and that of your clients.

Your clients don't expect you to be invincible – but they will expect a professional response.
