

'We focus on being connectors, business advisors and problem solvers'

ACTIVITY In December 2017, Ronan Daly Jermyn relocated its Dublin office to the Exchange building in George's Dock at the IFSC.

We were fortunate to find such an exceptional space right at the heart of our preferred location, and the larger space affords the firm further facilities for growth, as it continues to expand its offering in Dublin, Cork and Galway. It brings the total square footage occupied by Ronan Daly Jermyn across its three offices to over 40,000 sq. ft.

Technology, healthcare, tax and insurance will provide growth opportunities in the coming years. Over the past 12 months, the number of solicitors at the firm has grown over 10% and included strategic hires across practice areas. In January, leading litigation practitioner Peter Lennon joined the firm as partner in our Dublin office. His substantial experience around marine and aviation disputes will boost Ronan Daly Jermyn's already strong litigation capabilities.

Last December, Patrick Dorgan joined the firm's real estate group. He has more than 30 years' experience providing strategic legal advice to property developers, funds, receivers and retailers, and in relation to portfolio acquisitions, secured lending and property finance.

IRISH ECONOMY The Irish economy is growing three times faster than the Brexit-stricken UK and double that of Germany. The surge is partly driven by the activities of multinational companies operating here. As a small open economy, we have been benefiting from a sustained expansion in the global economy over the past 10 years. Domestic demand is expected to remain the main driver of the economy, supported by the improving labour market.

BREXIT There are obvious threats for existing clients in relation to trade and exports. However, there is also significant opportunity for increased FDI in Ireland, particularly in the life sciences, healthcare and fintech sectors.

USP More than law, it's about our delivering excellent legal advice that is tailored to our clients' business needs, every time. To do this, we invest time and resources getting to know our clients' business and industry. We focus not just on being legal partners, but on being connectors, business advisors and problem solvers, and our clients' first port of call when they need trusted advice on a wide range of issues affecting their business.
